The economic crisis could increase the number of unemployed women by up to 22 million this year, the International Labour Organization (ILO) says.

In a report assessing employment trends for women, the ILO warns that they will not escape the downturn.

More...