

For years, America's military has been divided, competent military professionals and patriots on one side and Christian Zionists, loyal to Israel and addicted to a propaganda "dreamworld" on the other.

With thousands of military and intelligence officials, retirees openly, others hiding their rage, aware of the decades of Israeli spying and the 9/11 cover-up, this divide has never been so strong. What we don't know is how many serving today have the personal courage to speak out openly. Now the threat is nuclear weapons, not just a "shoebox dirty bomb" but full sized nukes, the weapons we have been hunting for years, claiming Saddam was prepared to use them "at 45 minutes notice," the same nukes "sent to Syria by ambulance." They could be anywhere and anyone could be ready to use one. There is only one possible culprit capable of doing this, however, only one country with something to gain and the willingness to act.

A substantial evidentiary trail exists that places Israel's possible involvement in 9/11 on the table, with dozens of suspects questioned and more and more of the "facts" about 9/11 now proving, as with the Kennedy assassinations, to be lies.

Real theories, not "conspiracy," tell us that 9/11 was planned to get America to attack Iraq, part of Israel's long term strategy for the region, leaving them, not only the only nuclear power, but an armed aggressor afloat in a sea of broken nations occupied by American troops, troops who take orders from politicians who take orders from Israel. However, after the massive Bush administration blunders in Iraq and Afghanistan and the virtual destruction of a military incapable of sustaining a decade long war, the planned Israeli attack using American troops, again, isn't moving forward as we all know it was planned to.

We have continual debates about religion in the military. Should Christian sects be able to force troops to prayer? Is America a Christian nation, is this what the founding fathers meant? What if, lets say, these sects were not loyal to the United States but rather constituted a national threat? Is an officer belonging to a Christian Zionist church likely to pass secrets on to Israel? Will they obey orders from the Mossad above their own commanders? Will an Christian Zionist with nuclear access follow his religious calling and cause a nuclear war to bring about Armageddon?

Can America stop an Israeli 'nuclear' 9/11?
