

Geneva: 500 euro notes found flushed down toilets

Monday, 18 September 2017 14:35 -

Swiss prosecutors are investigating why tens of thousands of euros were flushed down toilets in Geneva.

The €500 (£440; $600) notes were cut up and found in the toilets of a branch of the bank UBS and in three nearby restaurants.

Thousands of francs have reportedly been spent on plumbing repairs to unclog the surrounding pipes. The high-value euro notes are due to be withdrawn in 2018 over fears they facilitate illegal activities.

TVNL Comment: This is a strange story that might be worth following. We'll keep you posted.
