

OUTRAGE OF MAN FORCED TO DROP HIS TROUSERS IN AIRPORT CHECKS

Monday, 27 September 2010 22:52 -

A PASSENGER with a metal plate in his leg has told how he was forced to drop his trousers at one of Britain's busiest airports to reveal his surgical scars to security staff.

The "humiliating and embarrassing" episode was part of a new security drive, guards said.

Anyone who refuses to remove their clothes for the intimate examination is told they will be barred from flying.

TVNL Comment: There is the "freedom" that our so called troops supposedly protect. What a joke.
