President George W Bush has used a US drug trafficking law to impose financial sanctions on separatist Kurdish rebels in Turkey.

The sanctions deny the PKK access to the US financial system and block any transactions involving American companies and individuals.

More...