

Taliban militants, including several suicide bombers, have attacked government buildings in the south-eastern Afghan city of Khost.

The militants, armed with automatic weapons, battled security forces until six blew themselves up and one was shot dead, according to defence officials.

More...